P R E F A C E.

I N presenting the Twenty-sixth Edition of our SCOTTISH DIRECTORY AND GAZETTEER, we have again to tender sincere thanks to our numerous Subscribers and Friends for the steadily increased patronage which, from year to year, has been accorded to this work.

Several important new Sections have been added to the Directory this year. These include a complete List of the Magistrates, Councillors, and Officials for every Municipal and Police Burgh in Scotland, Shopkeepers' Half-Holidays, Weekly Markets, etc. Amongst the other miscellaneous information are included Municipal, Clerical, and Medical Lists for Edinburgh, Glasgow, Aberdeen, and Dundee; Justices of the Peace for the City of Edinburgh; Officers of State, Lords-Lieutenant, Sheriffs, Procurators-Fiscal, and Judges of the Supreme Courts of Scotland; Members of Parliament; British Consuls and Vice-Consuls in Foreign Countries; Masonic Officials in Scotland, etc.

Since the last edition was issued, the Directory has undergone a complete and thorough revision, and it is confidently hoped that mistakes are both few and unimportant. For errors of omission, or inaccuracy, which may crop up, however, we must plead the indulgence of our patrons in view of the comprehensive nature of the work.

In the process of compilation and bringing up to date of the present edition of the Directory, a large number of names have been added to its lists, our agents having visited every City, Town, and Village in Scotland to verify, by personal application, every name it contains.

By the adoption of the most approved machinery, and other special plant, we are enabled to issue our Directory at less than half the price usually charged for similar publications. The price to Subscribers (i.e., ordered before publication) remains 12s. 6d. as hitherto; Colonial and Foreign Subscribers are charged 5s. extra to cover additional cost of carriage, etc.

THE COUNTY DIRECTORY.

A County Supplement is now issued, and can be had bound together with the "SCOTTISH DIRECTORY AND GAZETTEER." This Supplement forms an exhaustive Directory of the Nobility, Gentry, and Private Residents, also County Councillors, Professional Gentlemen, and Farmers throughout Scotland, and is issued at the price of 7s. 6d. extra; or may be had bound separately, price 8s. 6d.

In offering our best thanks to all those who have kindly assisted us, directly or through our representatives, with information, we wish to state that any suggestion likely to increase the usefulness of the work will have our respectful consideration. It will be our earnest and constant endeavour in future editions, by accuracy of detail, completeness of information, and the introduction of new features, to merit the continued confidence of the public.

SUITABLE FOR EVERY PERSON.

Write for Particulars, as this grinds Twenty Times Faster than an Ordinary Grinder.

The "Saturday Evening Post," 10th May 1902, says of Carborundum:—

"Who among ordinary laymen would dream that Carborundum is entitled to be called an epoch-making product? Yet it is so put down by the world's engineers. There is practically no division of human life in which it does not figure to-day. It is the Greatest Abrasive Ever Known, and is used alike for polishing the egg-cup on the breakfast table, and shaping the piston of the great ocean greyhound. It hones the razor, puts an edge on the sword, polishes the diamond, points the tool that punches rivet holes in the armour of the great battleship. It polishes the shoe sole, the kid glove, and smoothes down the angles of the great telescope lens. Mr Acheson served six years under Edison in America and Europe, and thoroughly mastered the science of electricity. One day, as if by inspiration, he recalled that in one of his experiments that the fusing of clay and carbon produced a substance harder than anything then known. Comparing it with emery, corundum, and other abrasives, the fact was forced upon Mr Acheson that he had a fortune within his grasp. How well he mastered the situation is demonstrated in the fact that while Carborundum to-day is sold at a nominal figure, the first consignment was for 200 carats at 1s. 6d. a carat."

"A Steak often seems tough or tender according to the keenness of the knife it is under."—DR. JOHNSON.

THIS popular Directory contains classified lists of the Manufacturers, Merchants, Traders, Agents, and Dealers throughout the Kingdom, and embraces over TWO THOUSAND of the Scottish Cities, Towns, and Villages. Each is annually canvassed personally by competent Agents, solely employed on the Company's Publications. The type is kept standing, thus reducing errors to a minimum. In the Gazetteer Section brief notices are given of the Cities, Towns, Parishes, Villages, and other territorial divisions in the Kingdom. Some idea may thus be formed of the labour and cost of collecting and arranging the information, and of the utility of the work as a reliable Book of Reference.

PRESS OPINIONS.

The Times

MACDONALD'S SCOTTISH DIRECTORY.—The work which Messrs Kelly have done so long and so successfully for London, and for England and Wales, Messrs Wm. Macdonald & Co., Ltd., Edinburgh, have accomplished for Scotland and for its two capitals. Many thousand names have been added to this edition. All possible justice is done even to the most distant parts of Scotland. . . . The work is thoroughly business-like in its scope and object

The Scotsman

"The Scottish Directory and Gazetteer" is a useful and well-arranged book of business addresses covering the whole of Scotland. . . . Much credit is due to the compilers for their enterprise and industry in collecting the information. The general arrangement of the Directory remains the same as before. . . . In this issue the work has been thoroughly revised and brought abreast of recent changes.

The Daily Record (Glasgow)

Messrs William Macdonald & Co., Ltd., the Directory and Time-Table specialists, Edinburgh, send us a copy of their "Scottish Directory and Gazetteer," which has been thoroughly revised to date, and now presents trade lists which will probably bear the minutest inspection as to accuracy. At anyrate, in a few rather difficult tests to which we have subjected the Directory, we have found it correct.

Glasgow Herald

The Directory, which has over 1000 pages, is furnished with a general map of Scotland and plans of the leading towns. The Gazetteer portion is a very useful feature, as it contains a list of the towns and villages of Scotland alphabetically arranged, together with brief information regarding population, etc. The book has been thoroughly revised and brought up to date, and the lists have been considerably extended.

Birmingham Daily Record

MACDONALD'S SCOTTISH DIRECTORY.—Messrs William Macdonald & Co., Ltd., Edinburgh, the Kellys of North Britain, have just issued another annual and much-enlarged edition of their practical, useful, complete, and admirably compiled "Scottish Directory and Gazetteer." . . . Above all, the paper is far superior to that of most publications of the kind, and the book is stoutly bound.

Dundee Advertiser

A new edition of this valuable work has now been issued. Though there are no new features in this year's volume the arrangement is so complete that there is little left to be desired in this respect. The book is practically a carefully compiled Trades' Directory for Scotland, issued at a reasonable price. The Gazetteer gives in a concise form much topographical information, arranged alphabetically, and is most useful as a book of reference.

Edinburgh Evening News

"Macdonald's Scottish Directory and Gazetteer" is altogether astonishingly comprehensive. The volume is first of all practical, and has been carefully compiled. Since the last edition was issued the Directory has undergone a complete revision, and many new names have been added. . . . The arrangement of the book is good, and it is sure to be of service to business men and the public generally. The index is clear and complete.

Evening Times (Glasgow)

This is one of those bulky volumes which no well appointed office, hotel, or public institution can afford to be without. . . . It contains all the information which a business man requires in a Directory of Scotland. . . . The usefulness of the volume is enhanced by an appended Gazetteer, which gives the leading facts about every city, town, and village in Scotland. It is clearly printed on good paper, and strongly bound in red cloth.

Iron (London)

MACDONALD'S SCOTTISH DIRECTORY.—Messrs Wm. Macdonald & Co., Ltd., occupy in Scotland the position filled by Messrs Kelly & Co. in England, and their "Scottish Directory and Gazetteer," although necessarily not so bulky as the "London Directory," will be found to be as carefully compiled.

Invention

We are very pleased to welcome a new edition of this most useful work. It will be observed that great care has been taken in its compilation. The paper on which this work is printed is wonderfully strong and good, and the whole appearance of the Directory is such as should cause Messrs Kelly to look to their laurels. . . . In conclusion, we may say that all possible justice has been done to the subject-matter dealt with, and the general arrangement of the information contained.

Liverpool Mercury

The work of compilation of this comprehensive Directory has been ably carried out, and should be welcomed by commercial houses seeking a reliable trade directory.

Manchester Guardian

"Macdonald's Scottish Directory" is a useful compilation, which combines a commercial Directory and brief Gazetteer for the whole of Scotland.

Newcastle Chronicle

The present issue, which has been carefully brought up to date, and includes many thousand additional names, fully justifies the claim of the work to take a high place among publications of its kind.

Leeds Mercury

A new edition has been issued of this valuable and carefully-compiled work—a bulky volume, each edition being larger than its predecessor.

THIS well-known Directory contains exhaustive classified lists of the Manufacturers, Traders, Merchants, Agents, and Dealers in upwards of Five Hundred Irish Cities, Towns, and Villages, besides a comprehensive GAZETTEER Section, giving the location, population, and other local statistics for the Cities, Towns, Villages, and Parishes, with Postal, Telegraphic, Railway, and Shipping Information. The usefulness of the work is enhanced by copious lists of Merchants and Traders in LIVERPOOL and GLASGOW—the British Cities which have the most extensive trade with Ireland. The whole of the information is thoroughly revised every year by a staff of qualified compilers, solely employed on the Company's Publications, and the work thus brought up to date, and printed from type kept standing (reducing errors to a minimum), is unrivalled as the Standard Directory of Ireland.

PRESS OPINIONS.

Freeman

Seldom has a work deserved its title better than that which we have now before us; it is, indeed, in the fullest sense, a complete and perfect "Business Directory of Ireland," comprising within its pages compendious alphabetical and classified lists of all the principal manufacturers, merchants, shippers, and traders in all the chief cities, towns, and trade centres. The work reflects much credit on the care, industry, and patience employed by its compilers.

Irish Tobacco Trade Journal.

Without exception the above is the most useful Directory of Ireland published. It contains exhaustive classified lists of the manufacturers, traders, merchants, agents, and dealers in upwards of five hundred Irish cities, towns, and villages, besides a comprehensive Gazetteer section. To merchants in the principal cities of Ireland this Directory should prove invaluable. They are often at a loss for a complete list of the traders in the different towns and villages for the purpose of circularising, etc., but the book under review supplies all these, arranged under the different trade headings. The Directory should be on the table of every up-to-date man who seeks to do any kind of business with traders in the different Irish districts as well as with Liverpool and Glasgow.—January 1906.

Carrickfergus Advertiser.

The present is the nineteenth edition of this well-known Directory, and great care has been exercised in revising the various sections and in bringing all information up to date. The Gazetteer section has been fully revised, and now gives the populations according to the 1901 census. A new Railway Map of Ireland is given, also town plans of Dublin, Belfast, and Cork. The volume is worthy of the great firm by which it is published.—26th January 1906

Irish Times

In the "Irish Directory" merchants and traders will find all the special information for which they have hitherto looked in vain. The book contains the most exhaustive alphabetical and classified lists of the principal merchants, traders, &c., in Irish business towns.

Northern Whig

The book is calculated to be very valuable for reference to merchants and manufacturers. Sections devoted to Liverpool and Glasgow will be particularly useful, as the trade relations of Ireland with these ports are so intimate.

Londonderry Sentinel.

Messrs Macdonald have long published a Scottish Directory and Gazetteer, and the present is the nineteenth annual edition of their Irish work of a similar kind. The volume has evidently been compiled with care. The Gazetteer is likely to be even more useful than the directory portion, seeing that it gives the population and other statistics of almost every village in the country. The Railway Map of Ireland is well executed.—20th January 1906.

Limerick Chronicle.

It is sometimes complained that there is not published a comprehensive directory of Limerick. That complaint may now be hushed, for we have before us a copy of "Macdonald's Irish Directory and Gazetteer," which entirely fills the bill as far as Limerick City is concerned; and if the other cities (with which we are not familiar) are as well done as Limerick, Clare, Sligo, and Tipperary (with which we are), the book should be the business man's "vade mecum." . . . In a word, it is a Directory that is a Directory, and hotels and places of public resort ought to have it, while all business men will find it very useful not only as an Irish Directory, but a Directory of

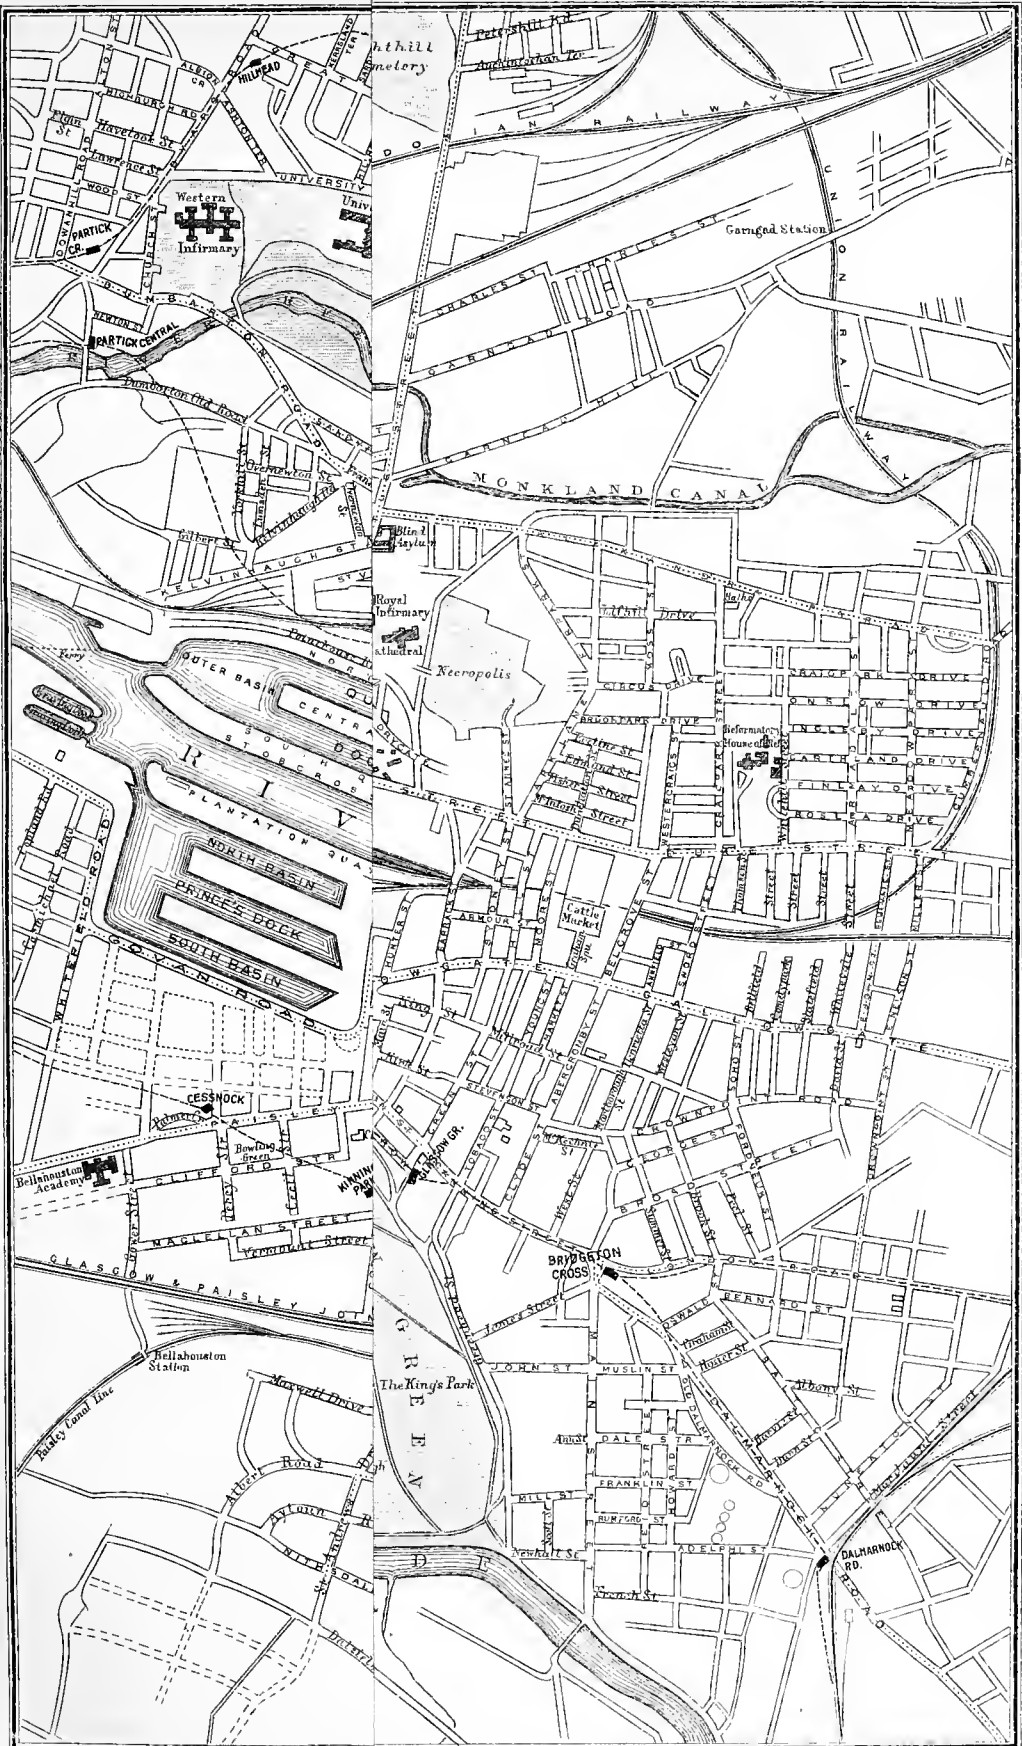

Liverpool and Glasgow, a home, colonial, and foreign mercantile guide, and a comprehensive gazetteer.—23rd December 1905

The Newry Reporter.

We have a word of special praise for "Macdonald's Irish Directory and Gazetteer," the nineteenth annual edition of which has just been published. Always a most reliable and carefully arranged compendium of its class, this edition for 1906 has now superadded a number of new sections of an important description. In the Gazetteer section the populations, according to the 1901 census, are given. The officially revised Bank Section gives the names of all the banks and bankers in Ireland, with a list of their branches, sub-offices, and agents. Taken altogether, Messrs Macdonald's Irish Directory and Gazetteer is a work of genuine usefulness, and we can heartily recommend it to all who require an aid of the kind.—23rd December 1905

The Armagh Guardian.

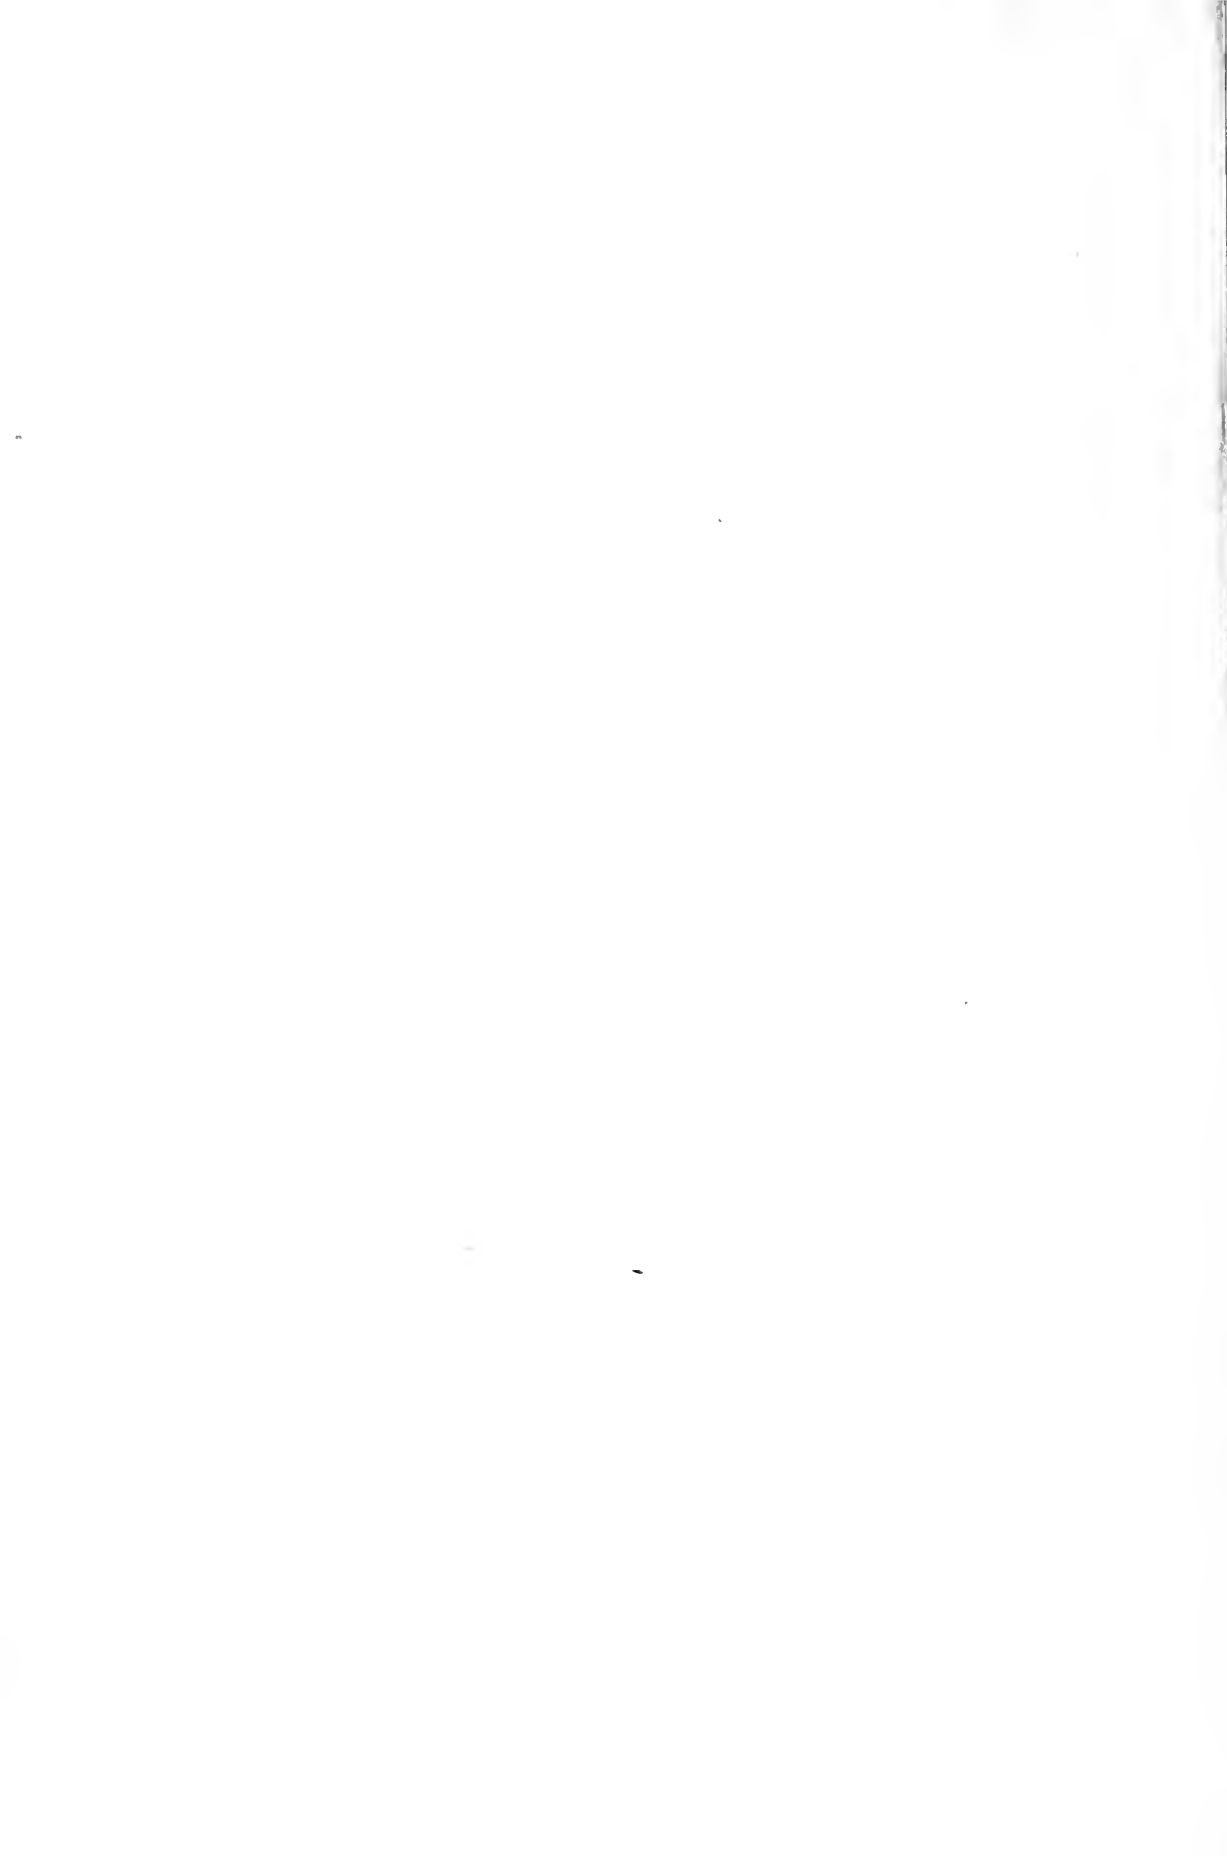

There are many directories on the market at present, but most of them are only so in name. That is, one can only find therein the names of those people who pay for the privilege of having those names in print, and in consequence not only many traders in each town are omitted, but entire towns do not appear at all. This is notably the case with big London "directories." "Macdonald's Irish Directory" is not one of these skeleton books. It gives the names of all business men in large towns classified according to the business, and those in small towns in alphabetical order, and is therefore a real directory. We have gone to the trouble of checking several towns, and have found it very correct indeed. A Gazetteer is also given, which, with the accompanying maps, will be found very useful.—29th December 1905.
